Side Lights On The Circus Business By D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted.)
In different departments in show business, and in many of them, occasionally a character different from all the others that you ever seen would show up.

It was along in the middle seventies that a young man by the name of Lou Williams came to the Burr Robbins show and went to work as a canvassman. Lou was a good faithful worker, never drank and was always tending to his business and had little or nothing to say to his associates.

After being with the Burr Robbins show for some two or three years Lou showed up here in the spring as was his custom two or three weeks before time for the show to start on the road. Lou's kind would always show up about this time in the spring, and it goes without saying they were usually broke and hungry. Lou walked down on the winter quarters where they were sitting out the show for the road, expecting to receive board for his work until such time as the show would take the road.

When I went to the barn in the morning Lou Williams was sitting in the front door and telling me his troubles. I asked him where he came from and he said, "I came from nowhere in particular, but I got here last night expecting to help fit out the show, but Mr. Robbins drove me away."

I told Lou that I would find him a place to work till time for the show to start and then he could join out. When the show was ready to take the road, Lou's surprise he was given a check for the front door, which was one of the best jobs around the show for a canvassman. Lou had never traveled with any other show and the following spring came into Janesville and he sold the show to Myers and Shorb, and that his one best friend, as he called me, show and it was only a few days till he walked up front and the ticket warden with a smile on his face and said, "You can't shake me."

Conditions and distances for those kind of people cut little figures. Their kind of ticket warden were good over all roads and they could go one thousand miles for the same price that could go one hundred.

I asked Lou if he came in the chair car and ate in the diner, and he simply smiled and said, "I had the best that my ticket warden could get, but he said, 'Never mind where I came from or how I got here. I want to go to work and I know you can find me a place.'"

I said to him, "If you wait till I get through in the wagon I'll take you to the boss canvassman and get you the best that he has left." They had had some trouble with the back door man with the show, which was an important man, and one that I knew Lou Williams could fill to the letter, for while he was at work he had no friends and was impossible for anybody to get by him at the back entrance to the show without an order from Mr. Forepaugh or the ticket warden.

Lou was an undersized man, but well built and was looked upon by his associates as a hard man to handle. Along later in the season we were showing in a place in Michigan and in the morning I went down to the hotel for breakfast and although registered from Janesville Wisconsin, before I was half through with my breakfast the land-lord came in and asked me if I was not the ticket agent and treasurer of the show. When I told him I was he said, "I wish when you are through with your breakfast that you would stop in the office. I want to have a talk with you."

When I came out he took me into the ladies' parlor and introduced me to a lady, who owned the grounds that day and this woman with tears in her eyes told me her troubles. She told me that she had a brother who had been a worthless character all his life, but she had boarded him and furnished him a home for many years. She said, "A few days ago my check on you for the use of the grounds, which called for $25.00 and six tickets came up missing. I knew in a minute that he had taken it, but on account of his being my brother I did not want to have him arrested and I came to see you to see if something could not be done where you would give me the money for the use of the grounds and I will give you any kind of a receipt you wish."

I gave her the money and the tickets and told her that the only trouble would be I would have to look out for the check for some days to come, that it might be sent ahead and that I would take care of that part of it. She said, "If my brother shows up with that check I don't care so much what you people do to him, if you can take that check away from him."

Along in the afternoon after the people had all gone into the show he showed up and standing back ten or fifteen feet from the ticket wagon told me that he had a check on us for $25.00 and six tickets and that he wanted the money. I said to him, "Give me your check and if it is all right I'll pay you." He said, "I have seen you circus people before. You can't get this check until I get the money." I told him that that was not the way that we did business and he would have to give me the check before I could pay him any money. He said, "I'll wait here till you get out of that wagon and you know it will be you and I for it."

"Well," I said, "This is a good place for you to come to look for trouble, but I am so busy with other matters that I never have time to do any fighting around the show, but if you are looking for that kind of game I'll send for a man that will accommodate you."

He was a big, rough-looking chap and looked the part of a fighter. I sent for Lou Williams, the back door man, and when he came to the wagon I told him what this man was looking for and I said, "I didn't know but you might accommodate him."

Lou walked around him for a few seconds till he finally got the chance and in quick succession he landed a couple of Jack Johnson's best on his man and he was down and out. I told Lou to go into his pockets and check what he had that I wanted. Lou did this and by that time quite a crowd had gathered and some of his friends got him into a vehicle and took him down town for repairs.

I got out of the ticket wagon and went in to watch the hippodrome races and had only been sitting there for a few minutes when the chief of police came in, tapped me on the shoulder and said, "Is your name Williams?" When I told him it was, he said, "I want to see you a few minutes." And of course, for a few seconds I could see all kinds of trouble ahead for me.

After we had walked out into the managerie the chief pulled a good cigar out of his pocket and gave it to me and said, "They tell me that a friend of yours at your suggestion turned up a young man that had a check for the lot. This man made me all kinds of trouble for several years and this is the first time that I have seen him get exactly what was coming to him."

"The land-lord told me to tell you that after the show got together to get three or four of your friends and come down to the hotel and he will have a nice lunch for you and he wants to thank you for what you have done for the lady that owns the lot."

This was the first intimation that I had had in all these years that Lou Williams was a real fighter and it was not so many days later that I got into conversation with him and tried to find out something about his life. He said that his home originally was in Pittsburgh, that his father was a laborer there, but when he was a boy about eleven years old his father and mother died and he had to shift for himself.

He said that after his parents died a man running a livery stable there took him to his home to live, but he was nothing to me, he said, "but hard knocks and hard work and it was not long before I left and then drifted from one place to another, but I was always able to take care of myself and when I got to be about seventeen years old I got it into my head that there was plenty of money to be earned at the prize fighting game and in the outlying districts of Pittsburgh there were often scotches of this kind, usually getting a little the best of it until I finally concluded to make it a business. But these were always for small purses and as I gradually got up against better men it was not so long until I found out that my batting average was not the best and that after I paid the repair bills that were left by the men I had beaten, I drifted away to Chicago, where there, I think it was in '76," he said, "that I came to Janesville and started out with the Burr Robbins show."

Lou Williams as a working man was the soul of honor in the work he was given around the show and he was always looked upon as thoroughly reliable. But after the death of Adam Forepaugh in January, '90 he never returned to the show and this was the last that I knew of him.

In Edward Payson Weston's car Thursday morning in front of the Myers House I recognized an old friend by the name of Sam Ellis who had charge of Mr. Weston's books and his life and was assistant manager in the general business of Mr. Weston's long walk from New York to Minneapolis. Sam Ellis was with the Burr Robbins show in '79 and he was the Adam Forepaugh show appearing with that show in '84 where he remained for some years later.

Sam received a severe injury in a road wreck to the Forepaugh show at Chicago, Ill. in the later part of '84 which sent him to the hospital for the balance of the season and I think most of the coming winter. The following spring he was back in his work good as ever, but he still carries a long scar on his cheek to remind him of the railroad wreck of the Forepaugh show many years ago.

While I have not seen him for twenty-five years he knew me in a minute and called to me as I was walking by the car. He said, "We just arrived from Beloit and Mr. Weston has just retired to his room and ordered his breakfast and I want to go up and meet the old gentleman for a few minutes."

We went to Mr. Weston's room and Sam told him that he and I were partners in the show business many years ago and that in the meantime he had forgotten all about Janesville being my home. Sam told me yesterday that with the exception of about a year and a half he had been in the show business in one branch or another ever since he started in the business as a small boy, peddling peanuts with the Thayer and Noyes show in eighteen and sixty seven.

While Sam Ellis will be sixty-seven years old his next birthday he would recently pass for a man of fifty, and while speaking of his age yesterday he said, "Dave if you had stayed in the business you probably today would look as young as I do."

Sam and I had a good visit during the day and Thursday night about nine o'clock I bade him goodbye as they left for Evansville. And it is old timers like these that I enjoy meeting and rehearsing over old times together.

ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION DOES NOT AFFECT THE VOTERS

Holds Those Who Swore in Votes Primary Day Need Not Do So Again—But Few Required to Do So At That Time.

White John L. Fisher, acting district attorney, secured an opinion from the attorney general's office relative to the question of those persons who swore in their votes on primary day a week ago not being required to do so again. This will not affect the vote at the coming election as it was only in the fifth Ward votes were sworn in, sixty-nine in all. The opinion of the attorney general, in brief as filed by the Gazette's Madison correspondent is as follows:
Madison, Wis., July 19, 1913.
In an opinion to John L. Fisher, acting district attorney of Rock county, today, Attorney General Owen holds that where a voter in commission governed cities was compelled to swear in his ballot at the primary election, he cannot be required, at a succeeding regular or recall election, to again make affidavit as a non registered voter.

This however does make the vote on primary day that of registration and as it is a known fact that several non-residents and persons not having their second papers, voted at the time the rule to be followed Tuesday will be most rigid and the law will be enforced relative to these matters. Every one entitled to a vote will be given one, but attempts of persons not having second papers, persons whose residence is out of the city or who have not been in the state long enough will be denied and prosecution will follow such illegal methods.

ANNOUNCE MEMBERS INCOME TAX BOARD
M. P. Richardson, E. G. Fifield, and C. W. Blanchard Will Review Rock County Assessment.

Announcement of the members of the income tax boards of review for the various counties in the state was made by the tax commission of Friday. M. P. Richardson of this city, E. G. Fifield of Beloit and C. W. Blanchard of Edgerton will review the assessment in Rock county and will hear any complaints which may come before them. The sessions of the board will start on Monday, July 28, with H. W. Lee, county clerk, of the board, and F. A. Taylor, income tax assessor, present with the documents. The members of the board will receive a salary of $7 a day for the time they are employed.

SPORT Snap-Shots

Cleverness in the fight game is ruling at present. When Terry McGovern was tearing up everything in his path, it began to be thought that scientific boxing blow, for here was a youngster the game had developed who could stop any sort of cleverness to be had; terrific onslaughts and tearing in played hob with the fast footwork and speedy shifting. Young Corbett came along and beat McGovern at his own game. Then Bat Nelson, the most headlong fighter of them all put the cleaner on Young Corbett and Nelson did more than anyone else to show that the "in" stuff was the real antidote for science. For he won from Joe Gans, who was perhaps the most scientific light-weight the game has ever had. And after Wolgast came along and beat Nelson with the same methods it began, or rather begins, to look as if the "in" fighters are losing out. From the lightweights down the clever boys seem to be coming back.

And among the "hit and get" away school today are such speed kings as Ritchie, Rivers, Britton, Leach Cross and Johnny Griffith. Not to mention of course the feather-weight and bantam weight champs, Jimmy Kline and Johnny Coulton, both of whom have made their way through cleverness.

And after poor old Charley Murphy paid out the well known torn $100 bill in an endeavor to keep the infield in good shape, it seems a pity that he should be meted out such harsh treatment from an unkind destiny. Right now the Cub infield is an awful place of works, with the possibility of Evers suspended and Zimmerman and Bridwell in the hospital. Johnny should take care when his outfit is in such weak shape and not get too new with theumps, as he did the other day in Brooklyn.

An ingenious fan has suggested that a slight change could be made in baseball that might help somewhat, namely the addition of another batter in the lineup of the game to bat for the pitcher. Most pitchers are such exceedingly punk batters that it would be quite a bit to have a real honest-to-goodness batter approach the plate every so often rather than a pitcher who doesn't try to— and couldn't if he did—hit the ball. There is some little merit in this suggestion, for often a pitcher is taken out simply that a strong batter may bat in his place and help fatten the score. In a case of this sort the pitcher may be doing mighty good work in the box, but has to be yanked when the situation arises that a run is badly needed toward the end of the game. Then a frequent change of pitchers would be a certain extent avoided and the game would prove more interesting with a real swatter in the line-up in place of a joke, as the average pitcher usually is. However, an even better suggestion to overcome that sort of thing would be to cease coddling and pampering pitchers. Which is done quite a bit in the game today. Pitchers seem to think that they are sacred. A lot of the squad and needn't exert themselves under any circumstances when not in the box. True, a pitcher doesn't bat as often as the other players and for that reason shouldn't be expected to bat as well, but there is no particular reason why they should dash madly down to first on the infrequent occasions that they do connect with all the speed and acceleration of the well-known tortoise. A little less pampering of pitchers would help here a lot.

WILL FACE ENGLISH TENNIS PLAYERS IN DAVIS CUP CONTEST

Match Assured in American Team Comes Through the Final Round —Dogs Are in Training.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, July 19.—If the American tennis team is fortunate enough to come through the final round of the Davis Cup world's championship match now being played at Wimbledon, its members will face England's cup defending four on the same courts during the coming week. As was the case when McLaughlin met Wilding in the English singles title match, it will be a case of youth and ambition vs. seasoned maturity and experience. In John C. Parke, C. P. Dixon, H. Roper-Barrett and A. W. Gore, England has a quartet of players who, if not absolutely top-ranked in the tennis world, are racket wielders accustomed to both national and international play.

Gore held the English singles title in 1901, 1908 and 1909, finally losing to Wilding. Roper-Barrett and Dixon won the doubles honors in 1912 and 1909. Parke represented England in the cup series of 1909, 1909 and 1912. Dixon in 1909, 1911 and 1912. Against these players the United States has two former internationalists in McLaughlin who played for the cup in 1906 and 1911, and Hackett, who was an American representative in 1908 and 1909. The line-up will probably find Roper-Barrett and Dixon as England's representatives in the doubles, Parke, Dixon and possibly Roper-Barrett in the singles. Gore is likely to be a resister. For the United States, Maurice E. McLaughlin and R. Norris Williams 2d should play in the singles, with McLaughlin and Capt. H. H. Hackett as partners in the doubles and Wallace F. Johnson as a reserve.

During the English championships McLaughlin defeated Roper-Barrett 4-6, 8-6, 1-6, 6-2 8-6, which were the only instances where the American and English cup players were brought together by the draw. Parke is the player most generally feared by the Americans in the singles. In the northern championships of England in June 2 he defeated Wilding, who vanquished McLaughlin a month later in a five-set match, 6-2, 7-5, 6-8, 2-6, 1-5. This was in line with his great win from Norman E. Brookes in Australia last winter when he won 3-6, 5-7, 6-2. Parke, as well as Dixon and Roper-Barrett, are veteran tennis strategists who will pit skill, stroke and tactics against the Americans' youth, speed and endurance.

Experience in Tennis Wins.
The defeat of Maurice E. McLaughlin by Anthony F. Wilding in the challenge round of the English single ten championships again proves the value of years of practice and experience in the court game. Judging from the accounts of the final match between the American and the veteran New Zealander, it was the finished all-around play of Wilding that gave him the edge over the Californian in the grueling three sets won by scores of 8-6, 6-3, 10-8.

In the forty-one games that constituted the match Wilding won twenty-four to McLaughlin's seven, giving him a margin of seven games, three of which were picked up in the second set. Slight as this margin was, it proved that he played from the Antipodes held the reserve necessary to win at crucial points. Wonderful tennis player that he is, McLaughlin met an opponent who in finish and finesse was his master. Despite his sizzling and powerful service and smashing the young American found that Wilding was able not only to return his shots but to add to the returns the placement and pace which forced McLaughlin to a defensive rather than offensive attitude. He lacked consistency and failed on the ground shots which the New Zealander constantly fed him as a result of the carefully planned campaign based on Wilding's observations during McLaughlin's play through the title tournament.

There is in the defeat both honor and promise of greater excellence so far as the American champion is concerned. A youth, for McLaughlin is scarcely out of his teens, a wonderful tennis career appears to be his future. In 1909 at Sydney he was defeated by Wilding, 3-6, 8-6, 6-2, 6-3. Tennis players of the calibre of the Dohertys, Larned, Brookes and Wilding are not the development of a year, and few, if any of them, start with the natural ability and advantages possessed by McLaughlin. The Californian will some day be tennis champion of the world, barring accidents, but he will not wear the laurels until maturity and experience have steered and rounded out his game.

Prepare For Field Trials.
The owners of promising field dogs are already shipping puppies to the Northwest and Canada for training preparatory to the various field trials scheduled for late autumn and winter months. Several hundred young pointers and setters are at present in the hands of experienced trainers and more are arriving every day. Training on prairie chickens is considered the best possible preparation for the Derby. American Futurity and other field classics, which to the breeder of field dogs assumes the same importance that the Suburban and Metropolitan holds for turf enthusiasts.

The entrants for the next Derby, which is open to dogs born after January 1 of the preceding year, have a long string of workouts ahead of them before they will be ready to qualify for the field classic of the canine sporting world. Following the prairie chicken training, the dogs are gradually worked south just in advance of the cold weather. Leaving the prairies of the Northwest late in September, dogs and trainers move to the Southern states where quail take the place of prairie chickens in the second course of field education. All through the winter and early spring the training continues, and when summer arrives the puppies only in their second year, are sent North again for the finishing touches.

It can be seen readily that puppies whelped early in the year have a distinct advantage over those born nearer midsummer, since they reach training age in time to secure virtually eighteen months of work under skillful handlers before being called upon for the Derby effort. It is this early start that is the ambition of every owner of a possible Derby contender. During the coming autumn and winter more than thirty trials will be held throughout the country with

These prizes and championships are as eagerly sought as the trophies and titles in other departments of sport, and the sportsman who shoots over a dog together with the man who breeds field dogs for the love of the game attend or follows the details of the trials with an interest and enthusiasm not surpassed by the devotees of baseball, racing, athletics and kindred competitions of skill and endurance.

THE LATEST FASHION NOTE

Says: "It is a wise precaution against getting holes in delicate hosiery to powder the shoes before putting them on." Many people sprinkle the famous antiseptic powder, Allen's Foot-Ease, into the shoes, and find that it saves the cost ten times over in keeping holes from hoisting as well as lessening friction and consequent smarting and scaling of the feet.

PLAY FOR POLO TITLES AT NARRAGANSETT PIER

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Narragansett Pier, R. I., July 19.—Polo enthusiasts and society folk are gathering here in force for the big championship events to be played at the Point Judith Polo Club. Four cup events, in addition to the three championships of the Polo Association, are down for decision on the playing fields of the Point Judith club during the four weeks beginning next Monday. The tournament promises to be the most notable that has ever been held here.

The cup events will be given an international flavor by the participation of a team of poloists from Europe, to include Roger de Cabrol, Jacques Bertin and Comte Louis Rene de Gramont, who are numbered among the best players in France. There will be also entries from Canada, from the second season; California, Kansas City, Chicago, Cleveland, some of the best teams from the army, as well as teams from the New York, Pennsylvania, Southern and New England clubs.

TILLEY WINS ANOTHER TWO TO ONE GAME YESTERDAY

Tilley, the famous baseball twirler from Albany, took another step toward the big league goal yesterday by defeating De Kalb at Belvidere in another of his close struggles. The score was two to one, it being the third straight game he has pitched resulting in that score. Last Sunday he pitched the White Sox to a defeat by the same score, with Ruben Nickelson in the box for White-water. Nicholson is a Milwaukee A. pitcher. Yesterday, Tilley, as opposed by Elberly of the Rockford White Sox, pitched a masterpiece, securing nine hits and playing errorless ball. While Tilley held his opponents to four scattered runs, he scattered four hits for himself. He is making in good, and has a good clean record for himself already this season. He has won close to a dozen games with a .300 average at hitting.

RIVAL TEAMS CLASH SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Janesville White Sox Play Janesville Cubs at Driving Park—Double Header Scheduled.

On Sunday afternoon, Janesville White Sox are to clash with the Janesville Cubs at the Driving Park, and the Cubs have scheduled a double header, and the second contest being staged with the Beloit Athletics, who have taken the Janesville team's measure twice this season. The Sox are out to win their contest, and will have their strongest players in the field in today's game, giving their opponents a decided trimming.

Mullen will be on the mound for the Sox and as he has had a successful season as pitcher for the Milton high school and will twirl for the Sox for the first time, much is expected of him. "Mat" Ryan is billed to oppose Mullen, and despite the beating the Sox gave him in the early part of the season he is fully confident that he has enough on the ball to take the white Sox team's measure.

Cards Idle.
The Janesville Cardinals will have a much needed rest and will not engage in the national pasture Sunday. As the Janesville Moose are to cross bats with a rival lodge nine from Beloit, Manager Enright thought it best to allow the Moose full swing. A full schedule is being arranged by the Cards and some of the strongest in southern Wisconsin will be seen in the local stadiums. The Cards are to play at the Irish picnic at Edgerton and on every Sunday thereafter a contest with a nine who have a good playing reputation. Three Rockford teams including the Marquettes, Dr. Peppers and Orioles will be brought here and the fans will see some good contests.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT

written and publication authorized by the John C. Nichols' personal committee and to be paid for by their treasurer, John E. Kennedy at the rate of 25 cents per inch.

An Invisible Government at Work

Strenuous efforts are being made by the supporters of the Mayor to befog the real issues in the campaign by hiding under the guise of morality till their cant smells to Heaven, we the undersigned, acting under authority of the Personal Campaign Committee of John C. Nichols, herewith submit what we believe is the issue when stripped to the very core.

As the tale that the workings of the Invisible Government unfolds is a long one, it will appear in installments, the second of which was published yesterday.

Respectfully submitted,

H. L. MAXFIELD, Chairman
J. S. SMITH, Secretary
The Personal Campaign Committee

When in 1909 the water company compelled the users of lawn service to install meters at the expense of the consumer, it brought to a head the feeling long in existence, because of the already high rates, and also because of the irritating practices imposed upon the public. So widespread was the discontent that the then common council appealed to the railway commission.

Believing that it would fare better in the hands of the railway commission than in the hands of the council and fearing the wrath of the people, the water company surrendered its charter and flew into the arms of the commission for protection.

Great, indeed, was their surprise when the commission turned against it and ordered the reduction of rates of meter users, from thirty-five cents to seven and a half cents per thousand gallons and the installing of meters, free to the consumers.

Like the tiger that will rather die fighting than give up its prey and desecrate at finding itself in the pit dug for the people, the company now gathered its array of legal talent into its offices and conceived the idea of the Invisible Government.

Unable to handle the common council and stung by the railway commission, the company decided to appeal from the decision of the commission to the

Dane county court, and at its own expense sent Leslie Treat to circulate a petition to change the city to the commission form of government, and took a long shot chance at being able to control a government of but three persons.

That the company fully succeeded in controlling the administration is evidenced by the fact that though the appeal of the company to the Dane county court was taken nearly a year and a half ago, Mayor Fathers never took steps to bring the case to a trial and the water company is still charging thirty-five cents per thousand gallons and compelling the consumer to pay for the meter.

Is there now a mind so dull as to be unable to understand the importance that the water company control the city administration and dominate its politics? Is there an eye so blind that it can not see that the raising of the moral question is but a cloak behind which the water company is hiding? Is there a spirit so dead and a soul so decayed as not to rebel at men who will assassinate the character of a people whose only desire is to throw off an administration that by subtle means allowed itself to be seduced by the public utility corporations and elect one that will champion their cause in the Dane county court and force the water company to obey the ruling of the railway commission and carry out the mandate of the people in the purchase of the water works.

BUSINESS OFFICE OPEN SATURDAY EVENING.

WEATHER FORECAST.

Fair and cooler weather with light winds will be experienced in Wisconsin today and tomorrow.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

Who killed Tillie Bergstern, the girl who was found dead in a hotel last September, the victim of a double crime. The court decided that the two boys, Berger and Meyer, were the guilty parties, and they were committed to the state penitentiary to serve out long sentences by way of atonement.

But who was responsible for the addled brain and depraved condition of these boys who were not criminal at heart, and who never entertained a thought of murder. When these two boys left home the evening before the crime was committed, they were in normal condition, and but for the opportunity presented to render them maudlin and irresponsible, they would still be innocent, instead of being stamped for life with the trade-mark of the criminal.

The man who commits murder, whether drunk or sober, is the criminal of last resort, and when he is punished, the law is satisfied. But there are times when public sentiment becomes so aroused that it begins to ask questions, and investigate conditions, impressed with the thought that public safety demands more than the punishment of the actor in the closing tragedy.

This was what happened in Janesville after the murder was committed, a few months ago, and in the light of investigation the discovery was made that the boys were not the only criminals, but that we, the people, were responsible for the reign of lawlessness which encouraged our boys to drink, and our girls to wander away in the paths of vice.

Then came the moral awakening, and with it the opposition which always follows. Public sentiment demanded that laws and regulations be enforced, and when the demand was complied with, the opposition became active and the recall movement was started and finally culminated in efforts to remove Mayor Fathers for the simple reason that he was attempting to meet the demands of an awakened public conscience.

That's the issue, and the only issue before the voters at the election to be held next Tuesday. It isn't a question of men. The issue would be the same. The man who happened to be mayor would be the target, if he attempted to enforce the law.

The recall candidate may be as pure as a white-winged angel. He may be inspired by the highest motives, and fired with ambition to serve the city loyally, but were he an evangel of light the fact remains that back of him, and most active in his support, is an element which was satisfied with the wide open town, and seek to restore old conditions.

The commission form of government inherited from its predecessors a full-fledged system of political and moral corruption, which had been so long in force that regulative laws were inoperative. Custom had established a code of morals, which stamped as right, many things that were wrong. The boy who gambled and the girl who walked the streets had no more compunctions of conscience, than the man who sold drink to minors, or kept his place open on Sunday.

Disrespect for law had bred contempt and we became lawless, without intending to be law-breakers. These conditions prevailed because of the low standard of public morality, and they were going from bad to worse until the climax was reached at the time of the murder. Then the tide turned, and slowly but surely the standard of public morals is being elevated.

The election next Tuesday will decide whether the good work shall continue, or whether we shall drop back to the old level. And you and I, the voters, are to cast the verdict.

The city of Janesville has thirty-one hundred homes, presided over by thirty-one hundred wives and mothers, who are more intensely interested in the great moral issue which confronts us, than any other class of citizens.

The mother is the custodian of the home and there comes a time in her experience when every resource is taxed to its capacity and she needs the moral support of the community where her lot is cast.

When the boys and girls reach the uncertain age between boyhood and girlhood, and young man and womanhood, the mother realizes, as the father seldom does, that much depends upon the environments outside the home. She can only watch and pray and hope, for she belongs to the great voiceless constituency.

The strongest argument for equal suffrage presents itself when great moral issues, so vital to the home, are involved. If the wives and mothers of the city could vote next Tuesday the outcome would be assured.

They want to feel that Janesville is a safe place for their children, and they have some rights which we, the voters, are in duty bound to respect.

What did it mean when the Apollo theatre was crowded, the other day, with an audience of women asking protection for the homes? It meant that they appreciate the danger which confronts us, and an earnest desire to have it averted. Can we afford to turn a deaf ear to such an entreaty?

The recall candidate for mayor declares his good intentions, and his good wife declares her faith in him, in an open letter, yet the fact remains that the successful candidate will represent the constituency which elects him. Water never rises beyond its level.

The vote for mayor next Tuesday should be for James A. Fathers in the interests of public morality and public welfare. The line of cleavage between the two factions is not an imaginary line. It is clear and well defined. The right will prevail if you and I do our duty.

AT THE MOMENT

Hurrah!
Oh thanks, kind modists of Paree.
At last you've pulled a glorious stunt.
We hear your news in greatest glee—
Al gowns will button up in front.
Emancipated men, at last
No longer should we swear and grunt
While trying to make wife's gown fast—
All gowns will button up the front.
Some women may fall for the game
But we will bet that our wife won't.
She'll make us button just the same,
Though all gowns button up the front.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

THE CANNING SEASON.

(By Howard L. Rann.)

The canning season is considered by all right-minded husbands as the most lugubrious and painful period of the year. Some husbands would rather have their wives and the streets in a polka dot shape, skirts and cook not to be seen, rather than see them wrestle from dawn till night with the proud and recalcitrant gooseberry.

The canning season is never opens up until it becomes not enough to raise caruncles on a tin roof. It is an incontrovertible fact that the woman will sit around in a cool kitchen for weeks at a time without attempting to can anything, but as soon as a day comes along that would burn holes through an asbestos trunk, she is immediately seized with the determination to can everything on the place and telephone to the grocer for reinforcements. If men had their way, there would be no canning done except in the winter time, when it can be done without parboiling the entire family.

The process of canning is very simple. It requires no intelligence to can strawberries so that when they are opened six months later nobody will eat them if there is anything else on the table. Some people have the gift of putting up crabapples which are so true to life that they preserve all of their pristine contour, seeds and chives. The housewife who can convert a market basket of wild grapes into jelly that will not ferment and throw off pale blue bubbles on being exposed to the human appetite will never have to hire out to the soulless department store.

The hardest thing to can successfully is the elusive currant, as it requires the yearly product of nine bushes to fill a quart jar. On account of the scarcity of small boys who would rather pick currants and red raspberries than go in swimming, most people now have their canning done by total strangers.

Hot Weather Talks

You won't feel the hot weather so much if your skin is in perfect condition. The skin is the heat regulator of the body. When the temperature gets too high, the pores of the skin open up and let the perspiration pass through, and this sweating or perspiring cools the body. When the temperature drops, they close up and thus keep the body at about the same temperature all the time. No man has ever invented a regulator that works so perfectly as the skin.

But the skin must be kept clean in order to do its work properly. This means that it must be kept clear not only of dirt but of waste matter of the body. Electric light baths and massage will do more to keep the skin in working order than all the medicine ever concocted. One try will convince you.

FOURTEEN STORES COMBINE IN SALE

Over $750,000 Worth of Fine Merchandise on Sale for Week at Janesville's Progressive Stores.

Janesville's fourteen most progressive stores have gotten together and started one of the most unique sales ever heard of. Rather than hold their sales at different periods, aside from one another and scattered over a long period of time, it has been planned to hold all the sales at one time and condensing that time to one week. The sale which started today is participated in by stores representing most every line of merchandise. The sale at the time this was written had so far been a splendid success. Many hundreds of dollars worth of goods had been sold and this is but the first day of the event. It bespeaks a tremendous business before the sale week is over. The merchants taking part in the sale are: J. M. Bostwick & Sons, Amos Reiberg Co., Simpson's Garment Store, T. J. Ziegler Clothing Co., J. L. Ford & Son, The Golden Eagle, E. L. Howard, T. P. Burns, Pond & Bailey, Mahoney & Newman, H. L. McNamara, D. J. Luby & Co., F. J. Bailey & Son, McGinnis & Caldwell. It is conservatively estimated that at these fourteen stores over $750,000 worth of high-grade merchandise is on sale at bargain prices.

A. J. Huebel, who was operated upon for appendicitis at the Mercy Hospital, has improved sufficiently to be able to return to his home on South Main street.

The next regular meeting of W. H. Sargent W. R. C. No. 21 will be held in their hall Tuesday afternoon, July 22.

Wouldn't Go, Must Stay: Morris Larson, locked up by the police twice or more for intoxication, and promised his liberty if he would return to Stoughton would not so hence he must stay. He was sentenced to six days in the county jail this morning, not being able to pay a fine and costs after pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication.

STATEMENT

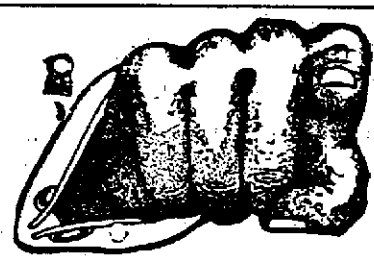

In answer to the statement made by Mr. Bert Van Houter, the following is a true review of what really took place.

In June, 1912, Mr. Bert Van Houter, formerly of the firm of Van Houter & Dalton, came to my office and in the presence of Councilman Cummings asked to be promised a license to conduct a saloon at a location, corner North High and West Bluff streets near the C. M. and St. Paul depot and I told him there was no chance under the Baker law to increase our number of saloons, nor to make any new locations, but told him that he had a good reputation as a saloon keeper and if there was a vacancy or a deficiency in the number of saloons in the present locations, we would be pleased to grant him a license. We told him that we did not like to have "residence" and "near depot" saloons and that we intended to restrict rather than increase the territory in which saloons were to be located. We told him that we thought that about forty saloons could maintain, and comply with decent regulation in their conduct. (We have granted 42 saloon licenses and 3 brewery licenses.) We told him that if he could obtain one of the then present locations, we would willingly make a transfer.

He came to the office a second time to plead for his proposition, but again as before we could give him no assurance.

I will also state that I never at any time, nor under any circumstances, said, agreed or even intimated in any manner whatever that I would grant saloon licenses in a one, two, three order.

SHADOW ISSUES MADE

Water Works, Invisible Government And Other Catch Sentences As Well as Attacks on Churches Mark Talks of Meeting.

There was an element of doubt expressed by speakers at the recall meeting Friday evening that everything was not going just as had been expected it would. The speakers all agreed that the cause was in a bad way, but they were not at all discouraged. Dr. E. A. Dulin as he was known to the audience, Tuesday night, and urged the men of Janesville to stand by the unfortunate women driven from the disorderly houses, "for whose condition they were responsible," did not continue his remarks and others who had spoken at previous sessions were not to be heard.

Dr. E. A. Dulin as he was known to the audience, Tuesday night, and urged the men of Janesville to stand by the unfortunate women driven from the disorderly houses, "for whose condition they were responsible," did not continue his remarks and others who had spoken at previous sessions were not to be heard.

Dr. D. B. Clark, erstwhile recall candidate for commissioner, who was side-tracked with P. J. Mout, when the Nichols crowd ditched them that Nichols' ambition to hold office might be satiated, and he as picked as the opponent of Nichols when the compromise was reached in the court action, presided.

Dr. Clark among other interesting remarks stated that as an employer of labor, having said lots in Janesville and Beloit, his company paid from twenty to fifty cents per day more for labor to Beloit workers than they did to Janesville men. This must, have appealed to the laboring voters who heard one of their leaders openly state facts for their benefit as an inducement to vote for the cause he represented.

Taking it all in all it was a pot pourri. John L. Fisher was the first speaker of the evening and he dwelt upon the "Water Works" problem one of the main issues of the day, to delude the voters of the city. They might wonder from the text to side issues but the speakers always return to the main issue "the Water Works" and that they would accomplish it if they were in power.

Mr. Fisher also took occasion to land his candidate to the skies and stated how John C. Nichols, had made his uphill fight to establish his present business. He stated he was bitterly opposed by the bankers, who would extend credit so he could purchase leather and by the Commercial Club. He probably did not know that the Commercial Club members had backed Mr. Nichols in his business to the extent of subscribing several thousand dollars worth of stock and the banks had carried him during hard times as far as they were able, but leaving this all out of the question it made a first class appeal to the laboring men against capital and fact and truth were not desired.

Mr. Fisher advised his hearers to go to the polls on Thursday, early, and often and register their votes. "When asked here Mr. Nichols was he informed the faithful workers of Chicago attending to important business, for its corporation but that he would be present this evening, Saturday.

H. L. Maxfield took his usual course of exploiting what he had sought to accomplish while a city official, glossing over his mistakes, only to cause the city, but exploiting some which he thought would bear the light of day. He also talked of the "Water Works" question, paid his compliments to the Janesville Traction Company, which he characterized as a "traveling junk heap," and went back into the history to rectify all the movements of the recall movement from its inception. Rant as to the "invisible government," a catch phrase found in the copy of the Socialism Primer, so vigorously studied recently by the recallists, a fee was brought into use as were several other well worn phrases.

H. H. Diddlewell, the press writer for the recallists, took the stand to say a few words of praise and to obtain some free advertising as to his "well recognized merits as the only newspaper man who ever struck Janesville." He believed there never was a newspaper and never was a newspaper writer in Janesville until he came to Janesville in 1912.

polls on Tuesday to act as a jury to try the Mayor of your City. The Mayor of your City, the Knipp case were also given attention by the city attorney inasmuch as they had been drawn into the campaign by the recall faction. It would have taken $150 to get the $30 fine, he said, in the Knipp case, Knipp's Attorney "woke up too late to take an appeal," but he was given the same opportunity as Knipp. "Where's the man who charges that I had corrupt purposes in remitting Knipp's fine? He's invisible like his government."

"Oh, then, there this Milwaukee Street bridge question. There's the Sleepy Hollow where the ghost is. We don't want to know why we don't keep property owners from building on the bridge. Just because the city hasn't a thing to say about it. The matter is before the courts for settlement and they could build their buildings around the mayor and city attorney for all the good it would do for them to make a protest."

"Now they say it's a contest between the man who lives in the thatched cottage and the rich man on the other side of the street. We don't want to know why we don't keep property owners from building on the bridge. Just because the city hasn't a thing to say about it. The matter is before the courts for settlement and they could build their buildings around the mayor and city attorney for all the good it would do for them to make a protest."

"When we come to the very bottom of the recall what do we find? They will violate the law but we will do it as a matter of right. It's either a question of submission and regulation according to the statutes or abolition on the other hand—that's the attitude of Mayor Fathers and all good citizens."

"I say the state of Wisconsin is watching what you men are going to do at the polls on July 22. And I don't think you will demonstrate that you are loyal to the cause of the moral businesslike administration and will vote for the continuance of Mayor Fathers in office, not by one hundred, not by two hundred, not by three hundred, and not by four hundred, but by five hundred majority."

"I am proud of my city and I enjoy its privileges," said Dr. David Beaton, who was the last speaker of the evening, "but this campaign is not merely a matter of morality. It is not merely a matter of regulation of the saloons that we want to get rid of. It is a matter of clean living to influence the characters of our boys and girls, that we are striving for. And the young people must know that their city officials stand for the clean and moral thing."

The recall party has made allegations, insinuations, generalizations and a mass of issues to take the place of argument, charged Dr. Beaton. They reminded him of the profane Scotchman who when his friend asked him what he was swearing at, replied, "I'm no swearer! At any one in particular, I'm just swearing in general."

Dr. Beaton called attention to the fact that the recall party says that under the early party of the Fathers regime "matters continued as they had been," under whom? And then they acknowledge that there has been a change in affairs because there was no recall while "matters were going as they had been."

"Has the recall party ever met the real issue of this campaign squarely?" asked Dr. Beaton. "Have they met the issue of law or lawlessness, of decency or indecency, of clean city government or the wide open town?"

The business interests, the educational interests, the moral and spiritual interests of the people of Janesville, independent of the result of Tuesday's election, it was declared. The kind of a city which the citizens will have rests with the vote on July 22nd.

INGALLS CASE ECHO HEARD IN ELKHORN

Postmaster Edward Morris, Acquitted of Perjury Charge in Trial at Elkhorn, Friday.

An echo of the Wallace Ingalls libel suit brought against the publishers of the Elkhorn Independent, the Beloit News and the Monroe Times, was heard in Elkhorn yesterday when Postmaster Edward Morris was acquitted by a jury on the charge of perjury.

Mr. Morris had testified in a libel suit brought by Wallace Ingalls of Racine, that his cousin, Judge Franz C. Eschweiler of Milwaukee instructed the district attorney to prosecute Mr. Morris on perjury charges.

Judge William J. Turner of Milwaukee presided on Friday. An attempt was made to introduce the testimony of D. B. Barnes, one of the witnesses on Friday, but this attempt failed.

ENGINEER WARREN DIES IN MILWAUKEE

Dies As Result of Fall While Trimming Trees About Home—Was Well Known in Janesville.

Charles Warren, a well known Janesville man, and formerly an engineer on the St. Paul railroad running a train between Janesville and Mineral Point, died as the result of a fall in Milwaukee on Thursday. A few years ago, local railway officials discovered that he was losing his mind. He was taken to the state asylum for the insane. After two or three years, he was partially cured, so he was allowed to live at home. He moved to Milwaukee, and took up a position in a machine shop. Thursday when he was attempting to trim the trees about his home, he suddenly fell to the ground and was so badly bruised that he died shortly after.

Mr. Warren was a friend of everybody when in Janesville, and was a man of about sixty years of age. He was for many years a member of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers and was one of the oldest veterans of the road.

ST. PAUL ROAD CONDUCTORS ARE CHANGING THEIR RUNS

At least four conductors on the St. Paul road who run in and out of Janesville have been changing their runs lately, to fill the vacancy left opened through the death of James Dean who was the oldest conductor on the road. Thomas A. Leahy, who was previous to Mr. Dean's death, had had charge of the passenger train between here and Mineral Point, was replaced from this run and is now in charge of the run formerly held by Mr. Dean, between Milwaukee and Mineral Point. Mr. Leahy's run, has been taken by Fred Fraunfelder, who has for the past few years, been running between Plattville and Calumet. Charles Corson relieved Mr. Fraunfelder on this western branch.

RUNAWAY BOY TAKEN TO DEPENDENT HOME

Chalmers Sather, Twelve Years Old, Leaves Home of Guardian and Is Picked Up in Beloit.

Discontented with the home that had been provided for him at the farm of Wallace Skinner, living on the Milwaukee road east of the city, Chalmers Sather, a boy thirteen years old, ran away to Beloit Wednesday morning, where later in the day he was picked up by the police on the charge of stealing a bicycle. Co-ordinator Seignuller telephoned Chief Police Ransom to inform the Skinner family that the boy had been found and an officer drove out to the farm to learn what they desired to do with him. It was decided to return Chalmers to the State Home for Dependent Children at Sparta and Mrs. Skinner left for that place with him yesterday.

About three years ago Chalmers and his brother who is very nearly his age, were taken from the Sparta home by Mr. Skinner. They had been sent there from their home in Jan Chalmers' father, being unable to care for all of the nine children. Chalmers, unlike his brother, was dissatisfied on the Skinner farm, besides ungovernable, and it was thought best to return him to the Sparta home where he preferred to go.

MOTOR FIRE TRUCK SAVING CITY MONEY

Cost of Operation During First Month of Service Estimated Not to Exceed $250.

Janesville is saving money as well as increasing the efficiency of its fire department through the replacement of two horse-drawn vehicles with the motor truck. It is just a month since the new truck was placed in service and Chief Klein estimates that the cost of the gasoline and oil consumed during that time does not exceed $250. During that time it made a number of runs, one more than two miles into the country over heavy roads and hills in response to a call for help from the Charles Butler farm. The expense of maintaining the two teams displaced for a month, feed, bedding, shoeing, and other expenses, was about fifty dollars, making the saving in favor of the truck, $47.50.

The reason for the surprising economy is apparent when it is considered that the truck is an expense only when in operation, whereas the horses are a continual expense, no matter whether they respond to an alarm or not. There is no upturning of expense to the amount of service. A further economy that will be effected through the use of the truck is its easing of the work of the firemen. It is no longer necessary for them to be pressed to their utmost speed in responding to an alarm because the motor is bound to arrive first and will make all long distance runs where prompt response, rather than a great deal of apparatus is required. This will give them a longer life of service.

The average length of service of a fire-horse is about five years, although many have been seven and eight years under less exacting requirements. Twenty years ago the runs per year averaged from twenty to thirty. They have been creeping up from five to six runs a year, until now the average is between ninety-five and one hundred.

Chief Klein says that with good care the motor truck should be good for from twenty to twenty-five years' use. Depreciation is a comparatively insignificant item of expense compared with the average automobile, because of the short time it is in use and the absence of the depreciation figured through models becoming out-of-date and obsolete.

Heart to Heart Talks

By JAMES A. EDGERTON

CONCENTRATION.

The burning glass furnishes an illustration that should be studied by every one who would make the most effective use of his mental powers.

The glass concentrates the sun's rays to one point.

Every man needs a mental burning glass.

So long as his powers are diffuse they will be as powerless as the sunshine, but when brought together to a focal point something will happen.

The men who accomplish things are those who can shut out all the world and bring their whole minds to the consideration of one subject. It is only so that they can pierce it through like the burning glass.

One of the greatest intellectual pleasures is to take up any problem, analyze it, pick it to pieces, look all over, under and through it, find out everything about it—in a word, master it.

Thomas A. Edison is perhaps the greatest inventor in the world's history because he has the power of concentration. He shuts himself up with his problem, often without food or sleep, until he has gained complete mastery of its every detail.

By concentration we can even affect the action of some given part of the body. We can affect the beating of the heart, the warmth of a particular point, the health of an organ.

It is a matter of organizing our forces and directing them to one point. And on it depends mental efficiency. On it depends success.

Overheard in the Office.

"We came up to see you because we had heard what a jolly man you are and we just knew that we could sell you a chance on a beautiful scarf we are raffling. We read the lovely poetry you wrote and—"

"I don't—oh, well, all right."

"Oh, thank you! And now can you give us the name of any other easy man—that is to say, any other nice man who would take a chance?"—Houston Post.

Reminders of Limerick Siege.

Near a battle scene during the siege of Limerick, in 1691, workmen while excavating discovered a quantity of human remains recently. A bullet hole was observed in one skull, and on examination a bullet was found embedded in the bone.

Easy Question to Answer.

"Do you know what will happen if you tell a lie?" was asked a boy witness in an English court. "Yes, I shall tell a lie," was his answer.

A Pair of Cottages—By John Henry Newson.

Home of Character No. 121

In this design for a pair of cottages, with a rather interesting and symmetrical treatment of the exterior, red brick is used for the exterior, except in the large twin gable ends, which are of frame, covered with wide lap siding. The roof is covered with black slate. Each porch is entirely separated from the other by the body of the house. The exterior combination of red brick, white siding and white window frames with black slate, is exceedingly pleasing.

This plan (16x27 feet) is built on a very shallow lot with plenty of length, and in each house the living room has light on three sides, while the dining rooms are amply lighted from the front. The kitchen is well arranged and has convenient access to the second floor or to the basement.

The front door is accessible from the kitchen through the center hall in

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT

Written and publication authorized by the "Good Government" Campaign Committee and to be paid for by their treasurer, Michael Hayes, at the rate of 25c per inch.

On the night of July 15th in the Janesville Daily Gazette, over the signatures of H. L. Maxfield and J. S. Smith, there was printed the platform of John C. Nichols upon which he goes to the voters on July 22.

This is the first time in all the long months of this contest that we have been favored with a definite statement of the charges and accusations upon which James A. Fathers is to be removed from his office as Mayor of this City. This platform, submitted by the Personal Campaign Committee of Mr. John C. Nichols, is interesting, for what it contains and for what it does not contain. The platform upon which Mayor Fathers presents himself to the people of Janesville for endorsement was published in the Janesville Daily Gazette on the night before the platform of Mr. Nichols appeared. You will remember that the platform of Mayor Fathers was explicit. It contained all of the things that he stood for; it contained an enumeration of all of the things that he had done; it contained a definite statement of the conditions that obtained under the administration preceding his, when Mr. Nichols was Mayor, and Mr. Maxfield, city attorney, and yet in the face of all this the platform of Mr. Nichols does not meet any of these propositions nor does it tell the voters where he proposes to stand.

It does not deny that gambling was open to the boys of our city, under his administration. It does not deny that houses of prostitution flourished. It does not deny that wine rooms frequented by women were maintained. It does not deny that saloons were kept open day and night and on Sunday. It does not deny that liquor was openly and notoriously sold to minors, both boys and girls. It does not deny that disorderly saloons were located in many places where police regulation was admittedly impossible. It does not deny that all this existed to the full knowledge of the police, who with the approval of the then Mayor failed to arrest offenders for such violation. It does not state where Mr. Nichols, the then Mayor, stood upon any of these propositions.

You will also remember that the platform adopted by the Good Government party contained a declaration of what Mayor Fathers had done to change the civic conditions of our city existing when he took the office of Mayor. The platform of Mr. Nichols does not state where he stands upon the eleven o'clock closing ordinance for saloons. It does not state where he stands upon the Sunday closing for saloons. It does not state where he stands upon the screen ordinance applying to saloons. It does not state where he stands upon the maintenance of wine rooms. It does not state where he stands upon the matter of public prostitution. It does not state where he stands upon the limitation that has been placed upon the number of saloons in our city and the limits wherein licenses shall be hereafter granted. You will also remember that the platform of the Good Government party contained an open invitation to Mr. Nichols to tell where he stood upon all of the foregoing facts and he was also invited to discuss the issues of this campaign at any public meeting held before election. Up to this time he has not made a statement upon these facts; neither has he nor any of his representatives appeared in any of the various public meetings that have been held, there to state his position in reference to these matters, nor has this invitation in any wise been accepted.

It is fair to the voters of this city, who are expecting to pass their judgment upon the matters involved in this campaign, that the position of both sides be openly and publicly stated and all of the facts be made known.

You will also remember that there was published a statement as to the business and financial standing of the City at the present time. This statement showed positively that Mayor Fathers has handled the City business in an intelligent, careful and thrifty manner; it demonstrates where he has saved thousands of dollars to the tax payers of this city. It is important to note that nowhere in the platform of Mr. Nichols can there be found the slightest allusion to the facts now mentioned.

Mr. Maxfield and Mr. Smith, speaking for Mr. Nichols, charge that the seat of government, in this city, is not in the City Hall, but upon the Milwaukee street bridge. What they mean by this no one knows but themselves. We take it to mean, however, that they charge Mayor Fathers with being under the control of the local public utilities. This broad and unsupported statement loses its importance when you stop to think, that these public utilities are absolutely under the control of the State Railway Commission. There is nothing that the Mayor and Council may do for them, there is nothing that the Mayor and Council can do against them. All of the rules and regulations under which these utilities operate are laid down by the State Railway Commission. Even the taxation of these companies is subject to state review, and in the case of the Electric Company the taxation is absolutely made in detail by the State Commission. It is also stated in this platform of Mr. Nichols that these companies come in daily conflict with the common interests of the people. The fact about the matter is, that during the fifteen months of Mayor Fathers' administration, there cannot be pointed out one piece of business of any kind or character, wherein the city had to do with these utilities or any of them. In the light of this statement which can be supported by the public record, what becomes of the charge of conflicting interests? Remember that one of the reasons why the State Railway Commission was given charge of these utilities was to do away with the faults that had grown up by reason of local control. Remember also that the Mayor and Council have no privilege to offer nor right to withhold. These utilities are independent of the Council and have absolutely no business to transact with it.

These charges must appear to the voters to be rather ridiculous, but we gladly answer them because they are the first definite statements that we have been able to gain from the opposition.

They were invited to show cause why the people of this city should seriously consider their claims. They refused to come. They want a meeting in the park Monday night. Why Monday night? Is it because they desire the opportunity of making a new set of wild charges at a time when there is to chance to refute them? Is it because we already had a public meeting arranged at the Opera House? Why is not the Opera House the proper place? Who wants to stand in the park two hours listening to speeches? We claim that they have defaulted. They have refused to meet the people. They have forfeited their right to public respect. We have not only invited them to our own meetings but we have invited ourselves to their meetings, neither invitation has been accepted. A proposition purposely concealed from public view is not entitled to public support.

The attempt to raise up a stalking horse in the shape of an Invisible Government has been so thoroughly exposed as to be ridiculous. Why wasn't the author of this comedy present to support his weird statement? It has been demonstrated that no reason for the Recall exists.

The real issue in the campaign is clearly set forth in a speech made by a member of the Recall committee at one of their meetings. Read this quotation.

"R. R. Lay, one of the Nichols' personal campaign committee, also talked. His remarks were directed at those who favor the retention of the disorderly houses in the city. He believed that as the men of Janesville were responsible for the existence of these women they should stick by them and not send them into exile. His language was most explicit and could not be mistaken by any of his hearers."

Where has any man shown
"Jim" Fathers to be other than an honest man and a square public officer?

Can you find in the whole campaign anything but petty charges and insinuations?

The gentlemen representing the platform of Mr. Nichols hold that Mayor Fathers showed utter disregard of the wishes of the people of Janesville by not permitting them to decide the kind of bridge at Milwaukee Street, whether steel or concrete. The answer to this is that there is absolutely no provision of law under which such a question could be submitted to the voters. The proposition is further answered by the vote of the people themselves. Mr. Nichols, through his advertising medium, The Daily News, advocated the defeat of the bond issue at the polls and gives all of his reasons therefore, and the matter is settled and closed. If it is fair to say that the great majority of the voters of this city will be pleased to know that the work will be started at once, and will be finished by the first day of December next.

In conclusion we would suggest that Mr. Nichols, or some one in his behalf, come to the Opera House Monday night and there present the Water question, the Finley question, the bridge question, the Milwaukee Avenue paving question, the Fourth Avenue bridge matter and any other matter that they may deem of importance in this controversy. We assure them a fair and courteous hearing and ample time to present their case. We have endeavored to fairly answer every proposition they have put forth. And if anything has been overlooked we will be glad to hear from them. You will note that nowhere has Mr. Nichols charged the misappropriation of a single penny of the public money. You will note that he has nowhere shown where the public business has been extravagantly carried on, where a single dollar has been wasted. You will note that they have not brought forth a fact that reflects upon Mayor Fathers as a public official or as a private citizen. We are informed that it is secretly argued that the taxes of some persons were higher than they should be last year, but no public mention has been made of this circumstance, owing to the fact that the entire reassessment took place under the administration of Mr. Nichols and he also was the cause of any addition to the taxes of any tax payer.

We suggest that a fair, careful and impartial examination of all of the facts will justify every voter in the City of Janesville in casting a vote on July 22nd for Mr. Fathers and a better Janesville.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

ON STEALING CHARITY.
TO ACCEPT charity either from the individual or the community is no disgrace whatever, although there are many people who can never be brought to believe that.

On the other hand, to accept charity when you are not in need of it is a kind of poor relation of stealing. As you read these words, you probably think of the hypocrites who, by pretending blindness or some other misfortune, wheedle the money out of other people's pockets and pile up bank accounts with it, or of that class which makes a science of living on one charitable organization after another.

These are indeed miserable creatures, but I wasn't thinking of them. I was thinking of another class which accepts a less obvious but none the less real charity, and which, in that it is usually composed of those who have had a better chance to be decent, is far less excusable in my mind.

A particularly flagrant example of the type called the "charity hunter" to my attention. A young woman who had worked hard for many years as a housekeeper went to a hospital. She had very little money saved, as she had been obliged to help out at home. But knowing that the hospital, although partially supported by philanthropy, needed every cent for its great work, she gladly paid the $8 a week, which was the regular fee. One day a woman came to the cut next her, and the first patient heard the nurse say to the new arrival, "Now don't worry about money. I have told the doctor all you tell me your circumstances, and he says it will be all right. All you ask of us is that you shall pay that the money will come from somewhere to carry on the great work at St. ———."

This patient stayed 7 or 8 weeks on this basis. Sometime afterward, authentic information came to the housekeeper that her cot neighbor owned two or three houses and was comfortably well off.

The marion of a working girl's boarding house, in which, by the aid of philanthropy, room, board and washing are supplied at $2 a week for girls earning less than $8, tells me that again and again girls earning better money lie about their wages in order to take advantage of this help which belongs to the less fortunate, and to have a larger surplus for luxuries.

Again, in a town where the district nurse is supplied free, or for what one can afford to pay, many people who could afford to pay well for this convenience accept it free.

These are a few examples of the type I condemn. You can probably supply more out of your own experience. Can you think of anything smaller and meaner than such stealing of charity? Personally, I cannot.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS

BY MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) I am a girl aged sixteen and have been going with a young man aged eighteen. Everybody gives this man a good name. My mother doesn't want me to go with him. She doesn't say anything of him but as a gentleman, I love him very much. What must I do? (2) Give me a nice form to write an invitation to a party. (3)—Should a girl eat after a young man about other girls? (4) Your mother thinks you are too young for love-making, my dear, and she is quite right. When you are a couple of years older you will want a real man, not a boy of eighteen. Neither you nor he knows what real love is yet, and in two years you may like entirely different persons. Save your love for the Mr. Right when he comes into your life. Be friend with this young man, but don't keep steady company with him.

(2) "Miss Daisy Brown asks the pleasure of your company to a party at her home on East Street, Tuesday evening, July the fourteenth, at eight o'clock." In the lower right hand corner write the nature of the party, whether dancing, cards, games, etc. (3) Not unless she wants him to think she is jealous and to feel big about it.

Dear Mrs. Thompson—(1) I am a girl aged seventeen. I have been going with a young man aged eighteen for two years. He stopped going with another girl to go with me. She tells me ugly things about him. He tells me not to believe her. Who must I believe? Should I pay any attention to those things? (2) When a girl and her young man friend are taking an evening walk, which side should the girl be on? (3) What would be nice to give a young man for a birthday present? (4) What will make your complexion brighter? (5) Give me a recipe for making you happy as well as himself.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a pretty girl of twenty years, well built and admired. There are several young men in love with me. They are all well fixed financially, but I am a poor working girl. Tell me how I can decide which one to take?

Take the one you love. The one who really loves you. The one who honors you and wants to make you happy as well as himself.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a pretty girl of twenty years, well built and admired. There are several young men in love with me. They are all well fixed financially, but I am a poor working girl. Tell me how I can decide which one to take?

Take the one you love. The one who really loves you. The one who honors you and wants to make you happy as well as himself.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

To Keep Onions—Let the onions dry. Heat a poker red hot and with it singe the roots to prevent all premature growth; place in a dry, cold room.

In cooking asparagus for salad it should be dropped into cold water when done.

Naturist sandwiches are made by buttering thin slices of white bread and putting nasturtium between them; washed and lightly salted. A few of the flower petals may also be used.

If paraffin is used to grease cake tins the cake will not stick.

The Table. Beat the yolk of one egg and one heaping teaspoonful of sugar in a glass until thick, then stir in one tablespoonful of port wine.

Beat the white of the egg to a stiff froth, and fold it in with the egg and wine. Serve at once.

Baked Bananas—Remove the skin from one side of the banana, then loosen the fruit and take it out. Do not strip the skin from one end to the other or the fibre will remain on the banana and make it bitter. Place the banana in porcelain or stone ware dish, dust thickly with granulated sugar, cover the bottom of the dish with water, and bake in a quick oven thirty minutes, basting once or twice.

Cream of Cheese Soup—Put one and a half quarts of milk into a saucepan, add a quarter of a pound of grated cheese, salt, pepper and red pepper to taste. Rub together one heaping tablespoonful of flour, add it to the cheese mixture, stir till smooth and thick. Beat yolks of three eggs with a little of the soup mixture, then add rest of soup. Serve with croissants or fried bread.

Loganberry Punch—One quart of loganberry juice, one quart of lemon juice, one quart of orange juice. Add four quarts of water and sugar to taste. If desired, a pint of claret may be added. Pour over crushed ice, and serve very cold.

Pineapple Omelet—Beat the whites and yolks of three eggs until light and creamy. Mix; add two tablespoonfuls of rich milk and one-third teaspoonful of salt. Put one teaspoonful of butter and lard in an omelet pan; when hot, pour the egg mixture in; stir them lightly with a fork, and chop over the top one cupful of fine chopped pineapple. Flip the omelet over and carefully remove it from the hot plate. Serve at once.

Vegetable Hash—Chop finely equal parts of cabbage, beets and turnips. Left from a boiled dinner, and as much potato as there is of all the rest. Heat beef drippings in a frying pan. Pour in hash and cook until heated through.

of some of the men who are straining every nerve to put our city back to such days if it would be. "Hush, be silent!"

That girl was a martyr! Is her death going to be in vain, can't we read she writing on the wall?

Are we going back to the days when any stripping of a bodice could walk into a saloon and procure intoxicating drinks? To the days when the wine rooms were the most valuable asset of the saloon keeper. To the Hush! You say. That's not a pretty story. Be silent! My God! (I say this with all respect.) I wonder if she was your sister or mine or the sister

William E. Gonzales.

William E. Gonzales, new minister to Cuba, was born in Charleston, S. C., in 1866. His father was a Cuban, but became an American citizen in 1850 and later entered the Confederate army. The younger Gonzales attended military school for a while, but at eighteen entered newspaper work and for a time served as secretary to Governor Richardson of South Carolina. He became news editor of the Columbia State in 1891, went through the Spanish war and was made editor of his paper in 1903.

CHILDLESS WOMEN

These women once childless, now happy and physically well with healthy children will tell how Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made all this possible. Here are the names and correct addresses—write them if you want to, and learn for yourself. They are only a few out of many thousands.

"Our first baby is strong and healthy and we attribute this result to the timely use of your Compound."—Mrs. E. J. KOSMAN, Kent, Oregon.

"I owe my life and my baby's good health to your Compound."—Mrs. W. O. SPENCER, R. F. D., No. 2, Troy, Alabama.

"I have three children and took your Compound each time."—Mrs. J. O. HOWARD, Wilmington, Vermont.

"I have a lovely baby boy and you can tell every one that he is a 'Pinkham' baby."—Mrs. Louis RICHMAN, 32 Monroe St., Carlstadt, N. J.

"We are at last blessed with a sweet little baby girl."—Mrs. A. L. KROUSE, Monticello, La.

"I have one of the finest baby girls you ever saw."—Mrs. C. E. GOODWIN, 1012 S. 6th St., Wilmington, N. C.

"My husband is the happiest man alive today."—Mrs. CLARA DAUBERGER, 337 Marlin St., Buffalo, N. Y.

"Now I have a nice baby girl, the joy of our home."—Mrs. DOLORES CORN, No. 117 So. Gate St., Worcester, Mass.

"I have a fine strong baby daughter now."—Mrs. A. A. GILES, Dewittville, N. Y., Route 44.

"I have a big, fat, healthy boy."—Mrs. A. A. BALDWIN, R. F. D., No. 1, Baltimore, Ohio.

Who Makes Your Bread?

The thousand best bread makers in Janesville cannot make good bread with the common flours of the trade. Any one can make delicious bread by half trying with

Marvel Flour

You'll never know how good good bread really is until you use MARVEL Flour. MARVEL Flour is not the peroxide bleached blonde kind of flour that makes you eat a whole loaf of bread to get a mouthful.

MARVEL Flour is the highest type of Patent flour. Made in a sun-lighted, hygienic, modern mill from the choicest ripe, selected, hard Spring wheat. The whole of the wheat (less the brown husk). It is a creamy white.

Bread made from MARVEL Flour looks like real bread. Tastes like a mouthful of the most delicious something your palate ever craved. MARVEL Flour makes the most satisfying bread Mortal has ever eaten. If you are using some other flour Get Out of the Rut. Get MARVEL. You'll know the difference with the first whiff from the oven and you'll never go back to that other flour after the first taste.

Any of the dealers below have a wonderful little device that ought to be in your kitchen. Ask for it. It's free to MARVEL Flour users. It is the most complete, handiest, best Kitchen reminder ever made. We guarantee MARVEL Flour. If for any reason you don't like it—use a baking—return what's left—the dealer will refund your full payment. Try a sack of "MARVEL". Get a Kitchen Reminder. (You want both.) And you'll find the flour is as good as we say it is or you don't pay.

The following grocers sell "MARVEL"—more will sell it later.

Taylor Bros. Skelly Grocery Co. Rothermel, W. I. Jones, J. H. Baumann Bros. Sheldon, J. R. Burns, L. J. McCann, R. & C. Leslie, Mrs. L. L. Schlatter, Mrs. A. V. Wilbur & Co. Tarrant & Osgood Dedrick Bros. Bates, O. D. Johnson, H. S. Campbell, A. C. Roeding Bros. Carle, J. F.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

HALF of all the diseases are in our heads, and half are in our houses.

More women patients, three to one, are sent to hospitals than men. This comes, in large degree, from the fact that women live indoors and breathe dust-laden second-hand atmosphere.

THE QUEEN OF BERRIES.

"Doubtless God might have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did."

Strawberry Punch—Mash two quarts of strawberries, add three quarts of water and the juice of two lemons; sweeten to taste and let stand four hours in a cool place. Serve with chopped ice.

Strawberry Tapioca—Wash a cup of tapioca and soak for two hours. Add a pint of boiling water and cook until clear and soft, then add a quart of strawberries. Serve cold with sugar and cream.

Strawberry Salad is a delightful way of serving the berry. Cut large fine berries in half and serve on lettuce leaves with French dressing. Four tablespoonfuls of olive oil to one of vinegar, a bit of salt, paprika and a pinch of powdered sugar.

Strawberry Ice Cream—Add a pint of sugar to a quart of cream with a teaspoonful of vanilla and freeze; when partly frozen open the freezer and add a pint of strained strawberry juice from a pint of berries which have been passed through a sieve. Let stand four hours to ripen.

Strawberry Pie—A most delicious dessert is this. Bake a shell of rich crust and fill with chopped berries well sugared. Just before serving heap on sweetened whipped cream and cut as any pie.

This is the season when fruit should be preserved for winter. So many delicious dishes may be further improved by a spoonful of preserved strawberries, so that one should have a small jar of the delectable fruit to fall back on in times of stress, when it seems as if one could not think of a new thing to eat.

A simple vanilla ice cream can be made quite elegant by the addition of a spoonful of the fresh crushed fruit or when that is out of season, the preserves.

The method which is quite common now of crushing the fruit and mixing well with equal quantities of sugar, and when well dissolved put in sterile jars and keep in a cool place, is one very satisfactory. It is hard to tell the fruit from the fresh berry.

WOMAN WHO STRANGLED STEP-CHILDREN CLINGS TO HER OWN BABY IN PRISON CELL

Mrs. Hennie Yates and daughter, Floy Farris, held as accomplice.

Mrs. Hennie Yates, thirty-six, and a daughter by another marriage, Floy Farris, fifteen, are charged with the murder of the woman's step-children, Ligon Yates, twelve, and May Yates. The children were drowned in a creek near the Yates home at Troy, Tenn. A plea of insanity probably will be entered for Mrs. Yates. The husband says he will aid the state.

MUSICAL INSTRUMENTS

You can always buy an alleged "5000 piano" for $125 but that's all "blunk." When I offer you a fine standard make and just like new for $160 that's a real bargain and will stand the investigation of an expert. It's a kimball. Call me on new phone 1214 and ask all about it. Hurry up. I need the money. A. V. Lytle, 15 S. High St. 36-7-19-1f

Where To Go in Summer

This question it would seem could be easily solved from the vast amount of attractive literature intended to appeal to the summer vacationist and traveler at the GAZETTE TRAVEL BUREAU.

Summer Literature at Gazette Travel Bureau

Vacation Land—Handsome piece of literature featuring the lakes of Wisconsin and Minnesota with beautiful illustrations.

The Star Lake Country, Wisconsin. People planning to visit some northern lake will find this map useful.

Summer Homes—This booklet de- scribes the various summer resorts in this state and adjoining states with information regarding hotel rates, transportation facilities, etc.

A Week's Cruise, $40.00—A folder describing the lake trip from Chicago to Niagara Falls through Lakes Michigan, Huron, St. Clair and Erie, covered by the above figure will be interesting to many people favoring a lake trip.

There is a goodly supply of the lit- erature mentioned above, which has been sent to the GAZETTE TRAVEL BUREAU for distribution.

The Bureau supplies free informa- tion about routes and rates to any point and is a subscriber to official railway guide.
